warning signs had been there. Arjen Robben, who started on the bench in Paris, refused to say whether the players were behind Ancelotti, but gave away much mor e by simply saying: "I won<#39;t answer this question." German newspap er Bild called it "Ancelotti<#39;s darkest night" while former Bayern captain Lothar Matthaus said "the team has no rhythm and no harmony".&

isleading to read too much into friendly results, it was the performances that c aused most concern. As they were beaten by AC Milan and Inter Milan in Asia and then Napoli and Liverpool in their own stadium in the Audi Cup, Bayern looked po nderous, and at times as if they were without a game plan.
