A midfielder is an outfield position in association football.[1] Midfie lders £ may play an exclusively defensive role, breaking up attacks, and are in t hat case known as defensive midfielders. As central £ midfielders often go across boundaries, with mobility and passing ability, they are often referred to as de ep-lying midfielders, play-makers, box-to-box £ midfielders, or holding midfielde rs. There are also attacking midfielders with limited defensive assignments.<

The size of midfield units on a team £ and their assigned roles depend o n what formation is used; the unit of these players on the pitch is commonly £ re ferred to as the midfield. Its name derives from the fact that midfield units ty pically make up the in-between units £ to the defensive units and forward units o f a formation. Managers frequently assign one or more midfielders to disrupt the oppos ing £ team#39;s attacks, while others may be tasked with creating goals, or have equal responsibilities between attack and defence. Midfielders are £ the players who typically travel the greatest distance during a match. Midfielders arguably have the most possession during a game, £ and thus they are some of the fittest players on the pitch.[3] Midfielders are often assigned the task of assisting £ f orwards to create scoring opportunities.
