Ubisoft will now control where Call of Duty and othe r Activision Blizzard games show up on cloud gaming services, with the exception of EU countries and the various cloud gaming deals Microsoft signed previously.
If you live in a country that s part of the European Economic Area (EEA) whic h includes EU countries and also Iceland, Liechtenstein, and Norway then you l I get a free license to stream via any cloud game streaming services of their c hoice all current and future Activision Blizzard PC and console games that you have purchased. If you re outside the EEA, then it s up to Ubisoft which services get c loud streaming rights for Activision Blizzard games, including licensing these b ack to Microsoft to include in Xbox Cloud Gaming. In theory, Ubisoft could deny Microsoft a license for future Activision Blizzard games, but in reality, that s extremely unlikely to happen. Microsoft will need to pay a wholesale arrangemen t fee to license Activision Blizzard games for its cloud services, though.It s also legally possible for Ubisoft to offer Activision Blizzard gam es exclusively on certain cloud providers but, again, very unlikely. I say unlik ely because unlike secret deals in the games industry for exclusivity or to keep games off Xbox Game Pass, everyone knows Ubisoft is controlling the rights here , and the company would face a backlash if it attempted to deny or block games f rom certain cloud services. Cloud providers will also still be offered a free li cense to stream these games in EU markets, thanks to the European Commission rem edy. Why Ubisoft? A number of companies wanted the cloud gaming rights for Activision Bli zzard games and had to essentially pitch the Competition and Markets Authority i n the UK. The interview-like process meant the CMA picked out the companies that would work best with its concerns over cloud gaming, and then it was up to Micr osoft to ultimately decide on which company to restructure its deal with.</p&
